

Arcadia Roots are an English band from the county of Worcestershire and their music is a combination of reggae, trance-blues and rock.

The band's vibe has been described as earthy and psychedelic with infectious grooves combining "swirling delay and reverbed guitar melodies grounded with a pounding rhythmic backbone."

The band draws on inspiration from their homeland; an edgy rock and blues heritage from the old industrial towns and cities of the Midlands, as well as from individual travels across the globe to Asia, Africa and America. This has helped them create a fresh sound, combining many influences and making it really hard for them to answer the question "what genre are you?".

The lyrical content of the music also reflects the band's extensive travels. Themes cover some current political and environmental concern's (fracking, trophy hunting, and religious indoctrination) to time-honoured topics such as love, lust and the search for meaning.

The band, who have been working musicians for many years, write all of their own music and their live performances can only be described as "Infectious" due to their ability to get the audience on their feet and moving to their roots rhythms.

Arcadia Roots was created in late 2015.

Some highlights so far...

The band have shared the Glastonbury Festival Pilton-Party stage with Bastille and Declan McKenna, headlined the BBC stage at Lakefest alongside Aswad, Alabama 3 and The Charlatans, supported The Lightning Seeds at Tenbury 2018 and will be supporting a number of major acts at festivals this year that include Lakefest 2018 and One Love 2018.

Arcadia Roots have also performed in front of an international audience at the John Bonham Memorial celebration in September 2018.

The band currently have two EP's released and will be releasing three additional singles, leading to an album before the end of the year.
